

JAMIE
Because Annie was

ANN
(To Renee and Dani) I wasn't, I promise.

JAMIE
She says that she wasn't

ANN
I wasn't!

JAMIE
Drunk that night but I remember,

ANN
You
were drunk that night.

JAMIE
I remember,
dancing in the piazza of the Castillo San Felipe del Morro, across the crumbling cobblestones, every step a promise, the heat of the day pouring from our bodies down into the streets, down into each other, the uncompromising radiance of love,

ANN
As defined by a gallon of red wine.

JAMIE
Our shoes tapping out forever forever forever forever,

ANN
My heel was broken.
They tapped out, Please Be Careful and Don't Twist My Ankle.

JAMIE
It was a quarter moon, there were little lights on strings

ANN
Lanterns, tissue paper, swinging from braided fabric. Colorful, writhing, alive.

JAMIE/ANN Silks.

ANN
So delicate, you could crush them with a breath.

JAMIE
And she said

ANN
I have something to tell you.

JAMIE
And I said

ANN
You're drunk.

JAMIE
I did not! Well, I did. But then I said

ANN
What, my darling?

JAMIE
And then she said, "I'm pregnant."
